Question of the Week:

Question: A friend of mine is afraid to go to HPA until he's sure he wants to go to medical school, because he's afraid that any doubt about the career will be mentioned in the committee letter. Is there any way to avoid this?

Answer: We would honestly be surprised if there were students who didn't experience some doubt about the career choice during their time at Princeton. We expect you to be using these years to try on different possibilities, get a better sense of what medicine and other careers might be like, and what fits for you based on all of the new perspectives that you gain from your college years to try on different possibilities, get a better sense of what medicine and other careers might be like, and what fits for you based on all of the new perspectives that you gain from your college years.
